

For all that cancer takes, give it everything you've got.

Daffodil Day is all about giving. Because cancer takes so much from our lives and the lives of people we care about, we're going to give it everything we can to support life-changing cancer research.

So with these fresh daffodils; give thanks, give back, give a bunch, give it your all to create content supporting people with cancer, their families, friends and carers, and the doctors, nurses and researchers working to change lives through support, treatments and cures.

Remember, Daffodil Day is Thursday August 31, so please share any content on or before that day, include #DaffodilDay and tag your state's Cancer Council in any posts.

For information and guidance on Daffodil Day posts, scan the QR Code.

Cancer Council
Daffodil Day